

PERMAFLEX

POLYURETHANE WATERPROOFING COATING

SANI-TRED® Permaflox is a liquid polyurethane coating that delivers long-lasting waterproof protection for a variety of construction surfaces, including concrete, wood, and steel. This liquid rubber coating is environmentally safe and easy to apply. For smaller areas, it can be brushed or rolled on, while spray application is ideal for larger surfaces. Once applied, Permaflox bonds to the substrate, forming a durable, rubberized layer that repels water and other liquids. It not only extends the life of surfaces but also makes them easier to clean and maintain.

Multiple Applications

Permaflox liquid rubber coating is perfect for sealing leaky basements, which are often prone to groundwater intrusion, mildew, and musty odors. Applying Permaflox prevents water from seeping in, helping to protect against water damage and mold growth. It also shields outdoor surfaces from weather-related damage. Wood decks and exterior stairways can be preserved and protected, saving significant maintenance costs over time. Additionally, Permaflox is ideal for restoring and safeguarding concrete fountains, ponds, and swimming pools.

Color Options

Sani-Tred® Permaflox waterproof coating comes in a variety of colors—dark tan, gray, black, and white—and is proven to perform reliably in any environment. You can choose a color that matches your existing materials or opt for a contrasting shade for visual impact. White is ideal for pools and fountains, providing a clean, crisp appearance. Black conceals dirt and imperfections, making it perfect for commercial areas and garage floors. Gray and dark tan are versatile options suitable for decks, basements, animal pen floors, underground waterproofing, and many other applications.
